

THE SKELETON

Chattering finch and water-fly
Are not merrier than I; Here among the flowers I lie Laughing everlastingly.
No: I may not tell the best; Surely, friends, I might have guessed Death was but the good King's jest,
It was hid so carefully.