

HOLYROOD PALACE.

("O palais, sois bénié.")

[II., June, 1839.]

Palace and ruin, bless thee evermore!
Grateful we bow thy gloomy tow'rs before;
For the old King of France<sup>[1]</sup> hath found in thee
That melancholy hospitality
Which in their royal fortune's evil day,
Stuarts and Bourbons to each other pay.

Fraser's Magazine.

[Footnote 1: King Charles X.]